

David Proctor

Production Manager

After twenty years at my previous employer I found myself redundant. It was at this time that Nylacast was able to offer me full time employment and I started with the company on 6th November 2000.

Although I had previously worked in Engineering / Manufacturing companies the materials, machines and working methods were all new to me so I was really starting from scratch. I was given opportunities to progress via gaining know-how from the more experienced employees, which gave me the knowledge to use different machinery. After a relatively short time I was promoted to shop floor supervisor overseeing 26 employees, being mentored by my peers. Through this in-house training I gained enough experience to be promoted to the Production Manager of our Milling Department to which I hold the role today and oversee 76 employees. Nylacast have never held me back in fact they have openly encouraged me to progress It just goes to show with the right frame of mind and a company that encourages self growth & personal development, your goals can be achieved.
